

Pre-Veterinary Experience Day Sponsorship Levels

February 15, 2025, • Kentucky Horse Park • Lexington, KY

The Pre-Vet Experience Day provides undergraduate students interested in a veterinary career with information critical for informed decision making.

Hosted in Lexington, KY, this day-long event offers students insight into current veterinary medicine issues, highlighting the exciting diversity of career opportunities while addressing topics like student debt, mental health and work-life balance. A panel discussion with current veterinary professionals will debate functional ways of navigating these industry concerns.

Attendees will also have the ability to choose between informational sessions based on their level of knowledge and stage of preparation for veterinary school.

Those who are early in their investigation of the pre-veterinary pathway may choose sessions focused on assessing veterinary schools and preparing a competitive veterinary school application. Those students who are further along in their pre-veterinary journey can opt into sessions providing insight into the Veterinary Medical College Application Service (VMCAS) application and the diverse career possibilities in the veterinary field.

In the afternoon, students will have the opportunity to engage with industry professionals as they explore an aspect of veterinary medicine through one of six potential focus options including:

- Private Small Animal Clinic
- Private Mixed Animal Clinic
- Private Equine Clinic
- Corporate Large Animal/Livestock Facility
- Government, Regulatory and Research Facility
- Practical Wildlife Opportunities

The Pre-Veterinary Experience Day is hosted by the University of Kentucky with collaboration from the Kentucky Horse Council and supported by multiple industry partners. It is designed to encourage and foster interest in veterinary careers by providing up-to-date information on a variety of topics, including career opportunities, financial assistance, veterinary school applications and more.
